V I N T N E R S

In the southeastern corner of Washington State, you can find Walla Walla, a hidden gem in the world of wine. With its rolling hills and warm, dry climate, it's a region that has rapidly gained recognition as one of the best wine-growing areas in the Pacific Northwest. The region is unique because it sits in both Washington and Oregon. This diverse terroir has everything from volcanic soils to cooler, higher-altitude sites, allowing for a wide range of varietals to thrive.

Together, these sites showcase the best of Walla Walla, planted with Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc, Merlot, Malbec, Sangiovese, and Syrah.
